

Frequently Asked Questions regarding Reopening Safely

Overall Questions

Why did you select the Family Choice Model?

- Here is the “Reopening Safely” plan to reopen the Pelham Schools under the Family Choice option. This means a full reopening of school for most students and staff while providing a remote learning option for students unable to return to school or uncomfortable about returning to school. The commitment will extend through the first semester for Pelham High School students and the first trimester for elementary and middle school students.

When do parents have to select their choice?

- The deadline is Friday, August 7, 2020. If you do not decide or submit, the default answer is that your child is attending school.

How do parents select their choice?

- For families currently in Pelham and entering grades 2 - 12, go to the Parent Portal Link and see the Fall 2020 Family Choice Survey at the bottom of the page.
- For families new to Pelham and those entering preschool, kindergarten and grade 1, go to Family Choice Survey for New Families to Pelham

Special Services

How will students with IEPs be supported in the remote learning environment?

- Students with IEPs will continue to receive all services and support described by the IEP. IEP teams may need to meet to discuss the implementation of services and supports. Remote classroom teachers will implement the accommodations/modifications in the IEP. IEP teams will consider whether or not services should be offered as a face to face service.

How will students with 504s be supported in the remote learning environment?

- Students who are eligible for 504 plans will receive all the support described by the 504 plan. Remote classroom teachers will implement the accommodations in the 504.

Will IEP team meetings be in person or virtual?

- IEP Team meetings will continue to be held remotely for the present time.

If I choose remote, will my child be able to receive services face-to-face?

- If you choose remote, the IEP team will discuss the provision of services. Decisions around the need for the student to receive the services face to face will be individualized and based upon the child's progress towards their IEP goals and their ability to meaningfully participate in the remote environment.

What if my child is unable to wear a mask as a result of their disability?

- Please reach out to your child's special education case manager. The IEP team will discuss any necessary accommodations needed as a result of your child's educational disability.

Will my child have the same service provider (ie: speech, OT, counselor, special education teacher) if we choose remote?

- They may not. Our staffing assignments will be determined based upon student need and with the understanding that we are trying to match staff to student needs.

If I choose remote, and become concerned about my child's progress, what are the next steps?

- We encourage you to reach out to your child's special education teacher or school counselor to schedule a team meeting to discuss your concerns. The IEP team/504 team should consider what, if any, amendments need to be made to the educational plan to ensure progress is made.

What is the difference between homeschool and remote learning in terms of special education services?

- When parents are choosing remote learning, they are choosing to participate in the public school districts instructional program. As a result the district is obligated to ensure that they are offering the student a free appropriate public education. This means that the district will continue to provide the services and supports described by the IEP. Homeschooling is different from remote learning in that it offers families the ability to organize their child's educational program based around their needs as a family. NH statute requires home education programs include several subjects -- science, math, language, government, history, health, reading, writing, spelling, history of the US and NH constitutions, as well as exposure to and appreciation of art and music – it does not specify when these subjects must be covered. This flexibility is a hallmark of home education; it does not need to replicate "school at home." Homeschooled students, however, do not have access to special education services. Although the district is responsible for determining if homeschool students are eligible for special education services, they are not responsible for ensuring access to a free appropriate public education when parents choose to homeschool their students.
